o No matter what size of drawing is being produced CAD systems can be used to produce them accurately. o Grid Snap, Zoom and Attach commands are 3 examples of methods of producing accurate drawings easily

Some advantages of using simulation are: to describe how an object can be assembled to use as a set of instructions for people to follow.

Computer simulation is when the user can interact with an object to effect the outcome. o When using computers to design things, we can use computer simulation to test components. . This could be a wide range of factors. o It can range from testing brake systems, the aerodynamic performance or cars or flight simulators

Some advantages of using computer simulation are: It is a safer way of training people. It is cheaper to test designs without destroying manufactured components. • Changes can be made to designs then tested immediately.
